

Brief Synopsis
Saved by the Banana!

Saved by the Banana tells the story of Ford Pierson. Ford graduated at the top of his film school class, but has always been a little too nice to “swim with the sharks.” Ford's been struggling for years to stay afloat, making hit-or-miss spots in the commercial field. Ford has been overshadowed throughout his childhood, school years and career by bully, Darwin Collins, who is not nearly as talented as Ford but whose ruthless and unethical character makes up for a lack of ability.

Ford's personal life is in the tank—he's divorced and gets no respect from his ex-wife. Two of his three kids are in his ex-wife's camp; only his youngest son, Laird, believes in his dad. Ford's career is on again/off again until circumstances push him over the edge: behind his back and in cahoots with Ford's two-faced partner, Darwin purchases and demolishes the property where Ford had just begun a fledgling commercial business. The unlikely trio of Ford and two colleagues—a handsome but vapid movie star who wants to get Darwin off his picture, and Ford's loser of an agent—join together to hijack Darwin's career. He will never know what hits him!
