

Brief Synopsis
The Secrets of Clayton County

"The Secrets of Clayton County" takes place in 1985 and tells the story of Sarah Hunter, a beautiful young woman, who lives in Chicago and is an IRS agent. Sarah's life is turned upside down when she is forced to leave her life in sophisticated Chicago and spend weeks in a hick town in Iowa to conduct auditing work.

Sarah has been in a five-year relationship with Andy who is a young businessman on the rise and is most concerned with his career. He feels that having the lovely Sarah on his arm at the many social functions he's invited to will only help bolster his standing in the elite society of Chicago and in the upper echelon of its business community.

Sarah is "promoted" to the Chicago Branch as an investigative agent. The Branch Director, Henry Sly, seems to resent and gives her the assignment no one else wants. Sarah grits her teeth and vows to get through a few weeks in the boonies. She knew what to expect – farmers, pigs, crops, hillbillies and tractors. What she didn't expect was to find herself and the real true love that she'd been longing for.
